

300-Ft. Cliff
Tumbles Into
Sea; Big Wave
Panics Town

Tacoma, Wash., April 16 (AP)—A huge section of a 300-foot cliff, apparently loosened by Wednesday's earthquake, plunged into Puget sound a few miles north of here early today. A resulting eight-foot wave hit the little community of Salmon Beach.

The wave ripped out a private dock and ramp, smashed a number of small boats and threw the community into panic. The water snaked against beach-side homes. No injuries were reported.

The slide appeared to be about half a mile long. It was just north of the Salmon Beach community and about a mile and a half south of the tip of Point Defiance.

Water Pipes Torn

Mrs. John Bourgaize, boat house owner who was awakened by the roar, said the falling cliff shoved out into the sound about 600 feet. The slide drove water about 25 feet away from the beach vicinity.

Besides the damaged dock and boats, a number of water pipes along the dock area were torn out. There was no early estimate of damage to the homes, if any, although a row of cottages along the beach was washed by the wave.

Barring further slides, there appeared to be no further danger, but the 300 panicky residents of the community remained along the beach or gathered in central spots. At first another earthquake was feared. Wednesday's quake centered only about 30 miles away.

In the darkness it was impossible to tell how far into the cliff the slide had bitten. The distance it pushed out into the Sound and the reaction from the water indicated that it had cut back many yards.

Coast Guard Alerted

The Coast Guard, alerted by the report of the wave, sent a cutter to stand by in case of emergency.

Salmon Beach is about two miles south of Point Defiance, at the northern extremity of Tacoma, and about a mile north of the Tacoma Narrows bridge.

At the Tacoma Yacht club, Mrs. Cathleen Emery, wife of the resident manager, reported that immediately after the Salmon Beach action, a rhythmic movement of the water in the yacht harbor began jostling the hundreds of boats around there.

Four-year-old Boy
Is Killed By Truck

Reading, Pa., April 16 (AP)—A four-year-old boy was killed by a tractor-trailer as he darted across a street.

Sylvester Hettinger, 27, of West Wyomissing, told police he tried to avoid Leonard Kreisher as the youngster started to cross the street. The boy was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kreisher.

Hettinger told Policeman Charles Wade he missed the boy with the cab wheels but the trailer struck him.

BUSINESS GOOD
UP TO EASTER
IN LOCAL STORES

Pre-Easter business has been good. That was the impression given today by local merchants who reported on sales during the pre-Easter season. The merchants said that business varied from "normal" to "excellent" although few could give an immediate estimate on whether the Easter season shopping expenditures equalled in quantity and amount spent the similar season last year.

As one proprietor of a woman's shop explained: "Last year the season was much longer. This year it seemed to be all in a rush." Her impression was that more clothing was sold this year than last, but said that a check on the books would have to be made to determine whether there actually was an increase in business over last year.

One large grocery reported "a terrific rush this week." The manager said he expected the store to set a record in sales for the week. He added it marked the first time he has ever been sold out of candy two days before Easter arrived.

Sales of hams, a favorite Easter Sunday fare, were reported as large, although a larger number of people seemed to prefer fowl this Easter. Whether the trend marked a change from ham to a new tradition of chicken for Easter cannot be determined by one week's demands, the manager pointed out.

More merchants, however, reported

Lenten Season Of Fasting,
And Prayer Ends; Cool Easter

(By The Associated Press)

Hold on to your Easter bonnet. It's going to be a cool and very windy Easter in Pennsylvania.

But the skies will be clear over most of the state. The weatherman's earlier prediction of snow and rain has vanished into thin air.

Cold, windy, rain or snow, thousands will turn out for Easter church services starting at sunrise.

The 40 day period of Lenten prayer and fasting ended at noon today.

Various Services

Yesterday Good Friday was observed in prayer and rest. Gov. James H. Duff declared the day a legal holiday. Banks and state offices were closed. Many amusement houses and businesses closed for one to three hours at midday.

Growers Ready
Smudge Pots

Adams county fruit growers today readied smudge pots to combat expected bitter weather in the orchards late tonight and early Sunday morning.

At the same time they reported that the wind storm which did some damage Friday night, protected the buds from freezing.

The change in weather brought strong winds that broke a television aerial at Ivan Shanbrook's home near Bonneauville; caused darkness in some parts of Arendtsville when a short circuit cut off current; knocked some branches off trees and caused electrical trouble at Barlow. It also brought a flurry of snow at Arendtsville this morning about 9:45 o'clock.

A soldered connection in a transformer at Arendtsville, Friday afternoon broke and the voltage in homes was increased to 220 volts. A radio of Wayne Criswell, refrigerators of Delroy Keller and Lester Davis were burned out. Light bulbs and electric clocks were also burned out. The line which was put out by the wind at Arendtsville was the same one which earlier in the day had carried the extra current.

Here And There
News Collected At Random

Tomorrow the Christian world proudly celebrates the anniversary of the resurrection of Christ. In all the Christian churches there will be special sermons, glorious music, Communion and baptism services. Nowhere in all the world is there greater rejoicing on this occasion than in the United States. More than 250 denominations will celebrate this great event, each in its own particular and prescribed way. Everyone is free to attend the church of his faith or choice.

However, in some lands, millions of God-fearing Christians will be denied this service. Men who believe not in the Creator have so decreed that church festivals shall be denied the enslaved and the oppressed.

But there will be many, despite the threat of prison cells, concentration or slave camps, who will observe this great feast with all the solemnity they possess in their own hearts and homes. No physical torture can force them to deny their God. Ruthless hordes may destroy their churches, heartless humans may preach atheistic beliefs but the true Christians will carry on, each in his own and heartfelt way.

Gettysburg is prepared and anticipates a great influx of visitors over the Easter week-end. Motorists started pouring into this world-renowned community as early as Wednesday and the peak is expected to be reached Saturday and early Sunday. Those who plan motor trips are urged to be extra careful, because with increased traffic come increased hazards.

Holidays provide a great tradition in America for travel and it is to be hoped that this week-end will not be marred by accidents. If you exercise caution you will assure yourself and your fellow motorist an accident-free trip. Please drive carefully and within the speed limit.

APPLE SPRAY
LETTER ISSUED

The critical period for scab this year will extend at least to petal fall, M. T. Hartman, county agent, reported today in an apple spray letter sent to all fruit growers in the county.

A moderately heavy infection of scab occurred on April 13, he added, and estimated that 25 percent of the scab spores have been shot. The remaining 75 percent are mostly mature and ready to cause infection during wet periods unless protection is maintained until petal fall, he added.

Red banded leaf roller adults have been present since April 5, and have deposited many eggs, Hartman said. The eggs, he added, will be hatching before petal fall, and as a result three pounds of lead arsenate per 100 gallons in the pink spray should be used at the present time to control the pest. However, he said, if the pink spray cannot be completed before more than the center blossom is open the lead arsenate should be omitted and the spray should be completed with wettable sulphur.

Where fire blight has been a problem, the county agent urged growers to use a Bordeaux spray when one-half to three-fourths of the blossoms are open. The Bordeaux should be two pounds of bluestone and six pounds of fresh spray lime per 100 gallons of water.

In a cherry spray letter sent at the same time, Hartman warned that the leaf spot fungus are maturing a little earlier than usual this season and recommended cultivation and use of two gallons of lime sulphur in 100 gallons of spray to protect against early infection.

National Airport
Plan Is Revived

The 1949 National Airport Plan in which Gettysburg is listed as being among those airports that require improvement and development is a revival of a project that originated several years ago, according to Richard Bircher, owner-operator of the Gettysburg airport.

Mr. Bircher said that the plan provides for the improvement of the runways or field at the airport but not the buildings. The plan also specifies that if the airport is owned by the town, county or a public agency, the government will pay half the cost of improvement, the state will pay 25 per cent and the owner of the property the other 25 per cent.

MOTHER AND SON ADMIT SLAYING MAN LAST FALL

Dover, Del., April 16 (AP)—A young 16-year-old farmer confessed early today that he and his mother murdered a 70-year-old man the woman met through a lonely hearts correspondence, State Police Col. Herbert Barnes announced.

At an unprecedented 1 a.m. (EST) press conference, the Delaware state police superintendent said the youngster had made a full confession that he shot Wade Woodridge, Bedford, Va., and that his mother participated and helped him dispose of the body. No motive for the killing was revealed.

Col. Barnes said the slaying occurred last October 10 but was not discovered until last night. He said the victim's body was buried temporarily in a pig pen and later removed, burned and thrown on the Dover city dump.

Relations Inquired
Those under arrest were identified by Barnes as Robert Vernon Brennan and his mother, Inez Gertrude Brennan, 45. Robert's half-brother Raymond was held as an accessory. Barnes said he was not certain of Mrs. Brennan's present marital status although it was known she had been married twice. Police were looking for her present and former mate.

He said a letter was received Wednesday from relatives of Woodridge in Virginia. It informed state police he had not been heard from since departing for Dover the latter part of last year to visit a woman he had been corresponding with through a lonely hearts club. The writers of the letter didn't know the woman's name.

Buried In Pig Pen
A police investigation, Barnes said, disclosed that the unknown woman was Mrs. Brennan who lives on a farm near Dover. The investigators centered their investigation on Robert Brennan who the police superintendent said finally admitted shooting Woodridge with a 12 gauge shotgun.

Then, according to Barnes, young Brennan said he and his mother buried Woodridge in a temporary grave in a pig pen on the Brennan farm.

Barnes quoted Brennan's story as telling how the body later was dug up and burned, the charred remains placed in tin containers, loaded on a truck and carried to the dump which is located in an isolated section at the extreme southeast section of Dover.

State police, assisted by highway department employees used a power shovel to recover remains of the body from the dump last night. Barnes said that after further questioning a first degree murder charge was placed against the mother and son.

TRANSIT STRIKE WILL CONTINUE

Philadelphia, April 16 (AP)—Some 400,000 residents of the Lackawanna Valley will have to do without their trolleys and buses for at least another five days.

Conferences among federal mediators and representatives of the Scranton Transit company and 400 striking operators and mechanics broke up last night without an agreement being reached.

William F. Cann, head of the three-man federal panel, said the next meeting would be held in the offices of the Conciliation and Mediation Service Wednesday at 10 a. m.

Cann said it was decided not to meet over the week-end because of the Easter holidays.

Most of the discussion at yesterday's three sessions concerned arbitration of the wage dispute. Cann said, The union previously had asked that its difference with the company be arbitrated.

The strikers are seeking an increase of 29 cents an hour for operators receiving $1.21 now and 35 cents for mechanics, who are paid from $1.27 to $1.42 an hour.

The company made no counter wage offer during the meeting, Cann said.

Easter Services Open In Vatican

Vatican City, April 16 (AP)—The Easter vigil of the resurrection opened here today with the ceremonial blessing of the fire in the entryway to the basilica of Saint Peter.

There were further rites—symbolizing world regeneration—at the basilica's baptismal font.

The ceremonies were led by Msgr. Giovanni Smit, titular bishop of Parato and a canon of Saint Peter's. The canons and clergy of the basilica participated. A small crowd of worshippers and others witnessed the ceremonies.

These services end with a mass during which the "gloria" hymn is sung, and the bells ring out after being silenced for two days. The ringing of the bells signifies the resurrection, and ends the period of Lent.

SEEK SLAYER IN DEATH OF BOY, 8

New York, April 16 (AP)—A vicious slayer, who strangled a young boy with a leather belt in a damp, dark recess in an old Bronx amusement park, was the target of an intensive police hunt today.

The body of eight-year-old Jack Goldsmith was found yesterday. His handkerchief was stuffed in his mouth and a belt was looped about his neck.

Police Inspector Christian Salender said he was using "every detective at my command" to track down the slayer.

Hours later, however, assistant District Attorney Milton Altschuler said "we have got no further than we were when the murder was discovered."

From the lips of small playmates, police tried to draw a word picture of a seedy man about 40 who "looked like a bum." He was sought for questioning.

Fourteen youngsters said they saw such a man with young Goldsmith before the blue-eyed boy dropped from sight Thursday evening. The boy, on an Easter holiday from third grade classes, went fishing Thursday in the Bronx river near the abandoned amusement park.

Other articles and commodities however, seemed to be following the expected decline in sale from the high point that was reached right after the war when many articles were first available.

However, one merchant pointed out: "Business may be off a little from last year, but it still is enough for me. This year I hope is normal, you sell a lot, can make a fair profit and have to use a little merchandising to sell the public. But the public's still in there buying—if you give him what he wants."

New Weight Record Set For Planes

Fort Worth, Tex., April 16 (AP)—A twin of the famed B-36 bomber took off, flew nearly three hours and landed with a 100,000-pound load last night. It was the greatest weight ever taken aloft.

And the plane, the XC-99, was still relatively light, Ray O. Ryan, Convair Division manager, said. Convair made the craft. Gross weight was 277,000 pounds, including the test load. Ryan called the flight "highly successful."

The weight was comparable to 400 men with combat equipment, which it was designed to carry. The six-motor plane also will be able to fly 300 litter cases with their attendants.

Company officials stressed that the flight was no "stunt" but a part of the regular testing program required by the Air Force before it accepts the huge craft.

BROKEN STATUE DOESN'T "CRY"; GIRL IS HAPPY

Syracuse, N. Y., April 16 (AP)—Shirley Anne Martin is "glad" that her broken St. Ann statue doesn't—as she puts it—"cry any more."

"I don't want it to cry. You wouldn't want a human being to cry, would you?" the 11-year-old Roman Catholic girl commented last night after kissing the small statue head several times without result.

The liquid drops that had appeared repeatedly on the figurine's face when Shirley Anne kissed the forehead were termed a "phenomenon" yesterday by the Rev. Robert E. Dillon, chancellor of the Syracuse Catholic diocese.

He added: "The explanation of the fact or its significance has not been established. The possibility of miracles is established beyond doubt. Whether this phenomenon is an instance of supernatural power at work has not been established."

Consider Shrine
This was the first official statement from the diocesan office since crowds began gathering Wednesday at the Martin home.

Shirley Anne, whose father is a milkman, retreated yesterday to another home. She was on a local television program last night, however, and talked with reporters.

She reported that no liquid had appeared on the image's face since a television program she took part in Thursday night.

Meanwhile, her family spoke of establishing a shrine for the statue head.

Her mother, Mrs. Arthur E. Martin, would like to have it enshrined either in front of the Martin home, a four-room apartment, or in the neighboring small park. The girl's maternal grandfather, James Secretti, proposed to build a shrine in a vacant lot adjacent to his home and that of the Martins.

WHY FRUIT TREES NEED BEES

Experience has established certain facts in relation to bees and fruit growing which overshadow almost all other principles in fruit culture. Yet, despite the emphasis commercial orchard owners place on having bees to "work" their trees during the blooming season, most small orchardists and owners of a few backyard trees completely overlook this vital truth.

Research has established the fact that bees are the only important pollinizing agent. Of course, other insects may visit trees in bloom, but the essential task of carrying pollen from one bloom to another is performed almost entirely by bees. Furthermore, bees are the only pollen-carriers which can be moved into the orchard or increased in numbers under planned practices.

Experiments and experience have amply demonstrated the conditions which stimulate or retard or restrict bee activities during the period when fruit trees are in full bloom. First, a temperature of 70 degrees F. or higher is necessary to put the full colony to work. There are partial flights from 60 to 70 degrees, with a few itinerant workers active when the thermometer is even in the upper 50s. If there are two or three days during the full bloom stage when the temperature soars to 70 degrees or higher between 10 a. m. and 5 p. m., the average 3-pound colony will quite adequately pollinize an acre of trees. Of course, a 6-pound colony will perform more effectively.

If the wind attains a velocity of 25 miles an hour or more, bee flights are almost entirely stopped. Sunshine is not needed to promote adequate bee activity if the temperature and wind movement are conducive to their work. Rains confine bees to the hive, thereby resulting in a total cessation of their pollinizing industry.

The question often arises—How far do bees travel to reach blossom in fruit trees?

Two miles is considered the maximum distance in good weather, although commercial orchardists realize that hives must be located within less than a quarter of a mile from a tree in order that bees may perform their vital task efficiently.

What can the owner of a few home fruit trees do to insure bees working sufficiently during the blooming period to "set" a heavy crop of fruit?

First, the hit-or-miss method of depending on bees from an unknown source is no longer wise. Swarms of wild bees have all but disappeared from many vast regions. There has been a general reduction in swarm numbers among individual beekeepers during the past two or three decades. Therefore, in many instances it may prove profitable to rent a hive of bees where self-sterile varieties of apples, pears, peaches, plums and cherries are grown. Of course, every owner should know if his individual varieties of fruit are self-fertile or self-sterile.

Next, there are excellent opportunities for increasing bees in all farming and many suburban regions. Not only are these insects needed to pollinate fruit, several vegetables and such important farm crops as alfalfa and clovers, but Americans need more honey and less refined sugar in their diets to promote and protect human health.

Persons having solitary fruit trees, particularly self-sterile varieties of apple and pear trees, or any sweet cherry varieties, should obtain a "bouquet" of blooms from another suitable variety of the same fruit and place it beneath or in the self-sterile tree during the height of the blooming period.

Soybeans, the "miracle crop of the twentieth century, have won an undisputed place among vegetables. They should be included in every home garden for their ease of culture and heavy productivity as well as the extremely nourishing properties of both the green and dry beans. Beginners should follow a few practical rules in adopting this Oriental immigrant to the list of food crops.

First, ordinary field varieties commonly grown for livestock feed and for manufacturing oil are unsuitable as vegetables. Special varieties have been developed in recent years for garden roles. These include Agate, Hanto, Easycook, Rokusun, Funk Delicious, Kura, Aoda, Bansen, Shiro, Hokkaido, Chusel, Higan, Kanro, Willom, Nanda, and Jogun. Of these the Bansen is by far the most popular and widely grown.

Beans are edible either as green shelled beans, dry beans, sprouts, milk or curd. As green shelled beans they are tasty and nourishing. In normal seasons the green bean is ready to eat within 90 to 100 days after planting. The dry bean is prepared similar to dry Lima beans. Soy milk is easily made from dry soybeans over winter. It is a welcome addition to the menu and may be used in almost all roles calling for cow's milk. It is especially appetizing on many breakfast foods. Too, soy milk is excellent in all soups where milk is desired. In all forms garden soybeans prove rich sources of vitamins A, B, and G, with the sprouts developing a good source of vitamin C, although the green and dry beans contain none of this last named vitamin. Of course, excellent proteins are supplied in all dishes prepared from garden soybeans.

This is a warm weather vegetable. Beans should be planted as soon as the soil begins to warm up in late April or early May. It is perhaps wise to inoculate the seed where the crop is grown for the first time. Local seed and farm supply dealers carry proper inoculating materials with directions accompanying the container. Otherwise culture is little different from snap and Lima bunch beans. In case of drought, soybeans are greatly superior to all other garden crops in surviving long dry periods.

In recent years many housewives have asked the editor for directions for making soy milk. Here are the simple steps:

One method calls for washing dry soybeans and soaking them over night. After removing the loosened skins, grind the beans very fine. Place the ground beans in a cheesecloth bag and soak them in lukewarm water at the rate of three quarts of water to each pound of dry beans. The bag should be worked under water with the hands for seven to 10 minutes and then it should be wrung dry. The resulting milk should then be boiled slowly over a low fire for 30 minutes, while stirring frequently to avoid scorching. A little sugar and salt are then added to suit the taste. The milk must be kept in a cold place until used.

JOE CAN'T PLAY ON OPENING DAY

Baltimore, April 16 (AP)—The listing "J. DiMaggio, cf" will be missing again from the opening day line-up Tuesday when the New York Yankees start the American league baseball season.

Joltin' Joe will be in Baltimore getting X-ray treatments for a troublesome pain in his right heel. The treatments which last about a minute and a quarter daily are to continue at Johns Hopkins hospital until Tuesday and DiMaggio indicated that his physician might prescribe different treatment after then.

Tuesday will mark the seventh opening day game in 11 years that DiMaggio will have missed.

In a news conference yesterday, the star centerfielder said he didn't know when he might be able to get back into uniform but he added "I'm very optimistic." He declared that he "never gave a thought" to retiring.

DiMaggio's heel was operated on for removal of a bone spur last November and he complained of it paining him through this year's spring practice. He left the Yankee team Tuesday at Fort Worth, Tex., to fly here for consultation with his physician, Dr. George Bennett.

DiMaggio said no further operations on the heel are planned.

Pittsburgh, April 16 (AP)—Cool weather was expected to cut attendance at today's exhibition tilt between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Detroit Tigers.

Hal Gregg, former Brooklyn Dodger who won only two and lost four for the Bucs last year, got the starting assignment from Manager Billy Meyer. He was to be opposed by Hal Newhouser, ace of the Tiger mound staff.

The two teams will play another exhibition game here tomorrow.

Philadelphia, April 16 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics are one-up today on their hometown National league rivals with still two games to play in the city series.

The A's combined three successive hits in a dramatic ninth inning rally to win the opener yesterday 4-3.

But the Phillies are out to square accounts today on the Shibe Park diamond.

Connie Mack's brilliant right-hander, Joe Coleman, outpitched four Phillies hurlers to earn the triumph. Blix Donnelly, relieving in the ninth, was tabbed with the loss.

The American leaguers were superior at field and at bat. The Phils connected for only seven hits, made two miscues. The A's played flawless ball and smashed out 10 safe-

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, April 16 (AP)—Ben Jones was talking to Neville Dunn of "The Thoroughbred Record" the other day when he remarked: "We run Calumet stable like a country store. Every time a customer comes in the door we want to ring up a sale, even if it's only a dime."

Ben was explaining why Citation will continue to run this season and through 1950. Jones doesn't think very highly of this year's Calumet three year olds and figures that next year's crop won't be much better, so Citation will have to be the cracker barrel to bring in those customers and pay Calumet's expenses. Another of Ben's theories is that Coaltown will be a better sire than Citation, "because I think that Easy Lass, the dam of Coaltown, is better bred than Hydroplane II, the dam of Citation. In fact, I think she is the best young brood mare in America today."

On the other hand Jersey Jones is actively plugging his "Delaware Dynamiter," Maynard Jones since Maynard's good showing against Joe Baksi recently. "Taking Baksi may have seemed like rushing the kid," Jersey explains, "but we were practically forced into the match by the refusal of the lesser heavies to meet the dynamiter."

Doubtful About Drive On Spending

Washington, April 16 (AP)—Some top Republicans in the Senate expressed doubt today that their drive to cut government spending will get far.

One GOP leader, asking not to be identified by name, said flatly that this session will see no slashes that will amount to anything. He said that might make necessary a boost in taxes.

Another, Senator Taft (R-Ohio), said he is "hopeful" that Congress will trim federal expenses, but added: "I am not optimistic."

A third, who has led many economy drives in the past, said he will go along with any cuts suggested by the Democrats but "I won't stick my neck out and propose any." He too asked to remain anonymous.

BALL GAMES TO GET BIG RADIO, VIDEO OUTLETS

New York, April 16 (AP)—The stay-at-home fan who prefers baseball in his living room to hot dogs at the ball park will get a better break than ever before in major league cities this summer.

Home games of each of the 16 teams will be broadcast, many of them on regional networks covering several states. Broadcasts of games away from home will be carried on eight teams. And some or all of the home games, of 13 teams will be televised.

Radio coverage will be about the same as last year, but television has made big strides. Only the Pittsburgh Pirates have said "definitely no" to television. The Cleveland Indians are agreeable to the idea but haven't found a sponsor who's agreeable to the cost.

Then there's the case of the St. Louis Browns. They're all in favor of being full-time video stars, but, says President Bill Dewitt, the only available St. Louis station isn't interested in carrying all of the games. The situation is still under discussion.

The same St. Louis station (KSD-TV) plans to televise 30 home games of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Pending lawsuits against baseball which claim the game has become Interstate Commerce because of the vast radio and television contracts apparently have had no effect on coverage this season.

Some observers have predicted that baseball might cancel these contracts in case of an adverse court ruling. This is based on the theory that in the days before radio the Supreme court found that baseball was not Interstate Commerce.

Here's the radio and television lineup:

National League
St. Louis Cardinals, radio all games, television 30 home games; New York Giants, radio all games, television all home games, Brooklyn Dodgers, radio all games, television all home games; Chicago Cubs, radio all home games, same for television; Cincinnati Reds, radio all games, television all home games; Philadelphia Phils, radio all home games, same for television; Boston Braves, radio all home games, same for television; Pittsburgh Pirates, radio all games, no television.

YOUNG VETERAN ADMITS PART IN BANK ROBBERIES

Morgantown, W. Va., April 16 (AP)—West Virginia state police claimed solution of two Baltimore bank robberies today, reporting one member of a three-man gang had confessed.

Lt. R. W. Boyles said Roy Mann, 28-year-old former military policeman, yesterday admitted taking part in two daring Baltimore daylight holdups netting around $3,000 and $33,000 respectively.

The state police officer quoted Mann as saying his two accomplices were his brothers-in-law and that the three men also committed three lesser robberies in Pennsylvania.

Two men identified by police as Mann's brothers-in-law, James Burnett of Latrobe, Pa., and Carl Close of Mount Oliver, Pa., previously were sought by Pennsylvania authorities for questioning in a grocery holdup Tuesday.

2 Cops Kidnapped
Mann was arrested yesterday on a Pennsylvania fugitive warrant in connection with the same case, in which a Ligonier, Pa., store was relieved of $100.

Police were working on a theory the Ligonier robbers were also responsible for a bank robbery at Pottsville, W. Va., on Wednesday, where three gunmen obtained $5,400.

The night of the robbery, two Weirton, W. Va., policemen questioning three men, were kidnapped and handcuffed to cherry saplings which had to be cut down to free them the next morning.

But a rookie policeman who was a customer of the Pottsville bank when it was robbed saw Mann yesterday and said he "couldn't be the guy."

Tucson, Ariz., April 16 (AP)—Columnist Westbrook Pegler stood out today as an authority on barking dogs.

As a result, Pegler and three neighbors will be able to sleep and work in peace — no longer harried by the barking of Raymond P. Fowler's four Norwegian elkhounds and a simple mongrel named "Thursday."

Pegler won a point yesterday during a Superior court hearing when he stated it was Fowler's dogs barking and not two Boxers belonging to another neighbor.

Boxers, Pegler said, bark in a baritone pitch, almost a growl. Fowler's pooches do theirs on a tenor scale.

Judge Lee Garrett, agreeing dogs have distinctive barks, granted the columnist and three other plaintiffs, Mr. and Mrs. Hamish McLaurin and Mrs. Guy Currier, of Boston, a temporary injunction requiring Fowler to confine his five dogs and keep them from barking.

The injunction stands until a later court trial before a jury, when the complainants will seek a permanent injunction and $1,000 damages each.

Rookie Pitcher Saul Rogovin of Detroit hit two consecutive home runs in a game for Buffalo last season.

Quizzed 12 Hours
Boyles declared Mann mentioned Occident as one of the banks, but said merely the gang got about $30,000 in another Baltimore bank holdup.

Mann, who was questioned for some 12 hours yesterday, further declared the trio took a trip to Florida after the first stickup, and a journey to Bristol, Va., after the second, according to Boyles.

The officer said Mann admitted participating in three Pennsylvania robberies in which a grocery, confectionery store, and a filling station were victimized last January. The total loot was around $150.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MISFORTUNE

We are left largely in the hands of fate, when it comes to mapping our way in life. Some small incident may change the entire course of our lives. W. Somerset Maugham, while an intern in a London hospital, wrote his first book, "Liza of Lambeth." It did not have a large sale, however, nor did his later book, "Of Human Bondage," which has proved to be his masterpiece, and one of the great books of modern times, but it did decide him to drop becoming a physician and devote himself to literature.

Sir Walter Scott, when but sixteen years of age, was stricken with an ailment which left him with an injured leg that lamed him for life. He loved the army, was gifted with an otherwise strong body, but because of this lameness his ambition for an army career was blasted. So he devoted himself to writing. This misfortune was undoubtedly lucky for Scott, for he later wrote: "I never knew the day that I would have given up literature for ten times my present income."

It was misfortune that kept W. E. Henley in a hospital for a year or more, but which inspired his great poem "Invictus," where he stated that he was the master of his fate and the captain of his soul. We would never have had that greatest of all dog stories "Bob, Son of Battle," had not Alfred Oliviant been thrown from his horse and made an invalid, writing from his bed that famous masterpiece.

While Thomas A. Edison was a newsboy on a train out of Detroit he ran to catch his moving train and was hauled up by the ears by a fellow train man. This left him deaf for the rest of his life, but this misfortune only increased his other powers, especially that of concentration, which resulted in proving him one of the great benefactors of all mankind.

To a greater or lesser degree, misfortune follows most of us throughout life, but this should only spur us forward, fortify our will, and make us the more determined to live our lives courageously and without complaint. Misfortune has all too often proved a blessing in disguise. Let us not forget this. Fortune has a way of smiling in the dark!

BEFORE AND AFTER

In speaking of the living, one set of words we choose. And everyone is labeled by the adjectives we use. We speak of some as clever, and some as rich as known. Since everyone is talked of by the traits which he has shown. But what about the living by his fellow men is said. Is very seldom mentioned when we talk about the dead.

Oh, whether priest or parson speaks the final solemn rite, The viewpoint of the living neither one will choose to cite. Though his comrades, wise or foolish, long had stamped him ere he died, The judgments of the gossips at the bier are brushed aside. And the adjectives then spoken are the gentler, simpler few. Such as tender, kind, devoted, brave and generous and true.

This all so very different when the eulogy is said. The soul is all that matters when we're speaking of the dead. The pride in wealth is ended, and the faults at which we sneered. With the passing of the spirit have forever disappeared. And a happier world I'm certain we should shortly come to see. If the living, to the living, would a little fairer be.

by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL
member S. A. E.

When motorists settle down to a game of bridge passing comes naturally.

Wandering and Why

"Wandering" is that tendency a car has of wanting to be all over the road at the same time, and is distinguished from "darting" and "diving" by the fact that it is a more gentle process. It may be quite dangerous, however, because it catches you unawares. You assume the car is going straight, and find that it is soon over to the wrong side of the road. This sort of thing may be caused by a number of conditions, the simplest being lack of sufficient tread on the front tires. Most wandering is caused by rear-end conditions such as, sagging rear sortings or an overloaded luggage compartment. This may involve the shock absorbers and in a few situations frozen rear spring shackles are found to be included. One of the odd things that should be looked into if the trouble doesn't lend itself to simpler solutions is to suspect looseness in the rear axle.

Oil Sucked Out

You may never experience this, but it makes interesting reading. I am referring to high oil consumption which is traced to a misbehaving crankcase ventilating system at high speeds. In several instances it was found that high air currents cause a vacuum effect, sucking oil from the exhaust of the ventilating system. The engines in question remained singularly free of dilution, but their owners found that in traveling the motors also had a tendency to lose oil at a surprising rate.

Cautions in Cranking

Every motor rule has its warning so when you remember to open the throttle wide while cranking a hot engine, or when re-starting an engine that has been run a few minutes and then switched off for a brief rest period, bear in mind that you should be ready to close the throttle the instant the motor fires. Unless this is done the engine will race, this action being harmful to the starter. It is quite the thing to hold your foot down on the accelerator while cranking a hot engine, but be on your guard so as to be able to take your foot off the gas when you feel the engine taking hold. This is the best we can do with our modern cars which are not as advanced as one of the cars which I drove back in 1934. It had a dechocker which provided a way to get more air into the intake without this risk of racing by opening the throttle wide.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"What happens when you short out a spark plug in an effort to detect an engine noise may or may not be a mystery, but as a refresher just let me say that the effect of this is to unload the particular piston. It runs free without the downward thrust of combustion pressure. This is usually sufficient to show up any looseness of the piston, its wrist pin or its rod bearing. When the particular cylinder is again allowed to fire abruptly by removing the screw-driver there is sudden pressure on these parts, an sometimes a noise that won't show up plainly under the unloading process will then reveal itself."

Draggy brakes, dangerous as they are, do not always yield to simple diagnosis. The usual explanations such as sticky lining, incorrectly adjusted shoes, trouble with the hydraulic wheel cylinders and so on often do not supply the answer. In such a situation it would be well to take off the brake shoe return springs, often called retractor springs, and test their tension.

While it is true that shock will often cause the pointer of a speedometer to waver something more serious than engine thumping or a rough road should be looked for if the pointer gets into the habit of jumping around when the car is rolling smoothly over a well-paved road. Here the chances are either that the cable is too long for the particular installation or that there is a kink in it. This kink may be so slight you can't detect it until the cable is put on a smooth table or floor and rolled. The main thing to remember is that pointer waver usually hints that the shaft is in danger of breaking.

Why They Go Bad

One reason why so many motor repair jobs have been unsatisfactory is the condition of engine head and block on some of the cars built since the war. With unseasoned blocks and heads that are both thinner and longer, warpage is quite a factor. Unless this is considered it is impossible to make head gaskets hold. Even manifold gaskets are involved in the mess. Unaware of this many owners delve into the inards and come up with more trouble than they had before. Such cases call for grinding operations, something which the average owner is in no way fitted to handle. Even here there are problems because when thin parts are cut thinner there is increased likelihood of new warpage if overheating occurs.

Courtesy Pays Off

One of the sad things about today's motoring is that so many people do not drive that extra mile which would make such a difference in the efficiency of the engine. This is tersely summed up in the confession of one owner who, faced with the problem of giving daily transportation to a friend who had moved a little out of the beaten track, decided to be a good sport and continue giving his rider continued service. What the car owner found, however, was greatly improved motor performance. He drove just a little over two miles more each day, but this was enough to warm up the engine properly. There was less crankcase dilution, and complete freedom from sticky valves.

Open Those Vents

When engines are afflicted with excessive condensation inside the crankcase it isn't enough to suspect that the piston rings are permitting more than normal blowby of combustion gases. One of the important things to check into is the crankcase ventilating system which serves to carry off vapors which would otherwise condense. This system has an entrance for air currents and an exit. Each has a screen which must be cleaned out occasionally. Without this simple attention the crankcase can't get rid of all the moisture that develops within it. Thinned oil, low pressure or even freezing of the water pump may follow.

Having Their Troubles

Q. One of the front tires of my car is wearing in an odd way and I get a definite shimmy at higher speeds, yet the tire is balanced. I know this because the weights are still on the rim. Wm. G.

A. You'll find that the balance weights have slipped and that the tire and wheel now actually are out of balance.

Q. In spite of adding oil to the engine the dip stick shows "empty." In addition, the clutch acts funny. When I hold the pedal down it seems to want to come up. J. B. M.

A. Oil is leaking into the clutch housing in a big way.

Q. There is a most annoying rumble in the rear of my car at certain times. This happens usually when the car has rear-seat passengers and when I accelerate suddenly. Everything seems to be properly adjusted. Front tires are new and the exhaust system is all right. Have you any ideas? F. L. S.

A. There's a rubber bushing just back of the midway support for the drive shaft. This may be worn.

Q. Moisture seems to get into the inside of the distributor cap on my car. There is a pinhole in the cap, and I am wondering if I should plug this up. H. Mc. B.

A. No. The vent checks condensation within the distributor.

Q. Testing the ignition system with one of those pencil lights which flash red I notice that there is no current at the breaker points. Current is checked at the coil and at the spark plugs. Does this account for the increased difficulty I have starting the motor? H. C. S.

A. These testers are for high tension current only, which explains why they do not register current at the breaker points. Your starting trouble may be due to moisture on the spark plug tops, the coil and distributor. The spark plug points may be fouled. And the cranking speed may be too slow.

Q. There seems to be excessive shaking of the gearshift lever which on my old car still is in the center of the driving compartment. C. L. L.

A. You'll find that the motor mountings are loose. These can be replaced.

Q. I am using a passenger car chassis for commercial work, but find that the rear end sags too much. Could I turn the rear axle upside down for a different mounting of the springs? R. H., Jr.

A. No need to try any tricks. Just install helper springs.

Q. There is an annoying skip in the engine of my car at low speeds. No matter how I tune up the engine there is no improvement. I have even used valve oils on the theory that there may be some stickage. The engine seems to run all right

SUCCESSOR TO DIMITROV MAY BE V. KOLAROV

Sofia, Bulgaria, April 16 (AP)—Foreign Minister Vassily Kolarov is a likely candidate to succeed the ailing and absent Premier Georgi Dimitrov, for the time being, at least.

There has been no official statement concerning who would take over the helm while Dimitrov is away. The government merely announced Thursday that Dimitrov is ill, and has gone to the Soviet Union on "home leave" for medical treatment.

An official statement of some kind is expected from the foreign office today.

Kolarov, a close friend of Dimitrov, is a deputy premier who recently has been given a front seat role in Bulgaria's international affairs. He has been associated with Dimitrov since they went through a revolution together in 1922.

Considered Quality

He seemed to fit well into his increased responsibilities during Dimitrov's illness, and is considered at normal and higher speeds. H. L. M.

A. You probably have a warped exhaust valve.

Mr. Russell will answer inquiries regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern street, West Hartford 7, Conn., and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply. There is no charge.

STREAMS DRAW CROWDS FRIDAY

Harrisburg, April 16 (AP)—Scattered rain failed to keep Pennsylvania's anglers away from public streams in the trout season's opener.

A five-mile stretch along the Wissahickon creek in and just outside Philadelphia yesterday drew a crowd of fishermen estimated by Fairmount Park guards at a record 3,500. In south-central Pennsylvania, officials at Caledonia state park said the turnout at the impounding dam there was the biggest in years.

The western part of the state reported a prize catch. John Brozdo, of Titusville, landed a 27½-inch, seven-pound brown trout in Big Sugar creek, Venango county. Raymond Robinson, of Lingiestown R. D. 1, Dauphin county, reported catching a 29-inch rainbow trout in nearby Silver Springs.

Ed Appel, of Philadelphia, was right behind with a 19-inch rainbow nabbed in the Wissahickon near Valley Green. Other fishermen reported catches ranging in length from 14 to 17 inches.

The state Fish Commission has stocked most public streams with 1,250,000 rainbow, brook and brown trout since early March. The season ends on July 31.

GOP TO FORCE FULL TALKS ON SECURITY PACT

By JACK BELL
Washington, April 16 (AP)—Senate Republicans will force "full discussion" of the North Atlantic Security pact, Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said today.

His statement came in answer to a suggestion by Senator McGrath of Rhode Island, the Democratic National chairman, that Republicans may be planning to use debate on the treaty as "a legislative roadblock" against other measures on President Truman's program.

Writing in the weekly party pamphlet, "Capital Comment," McGrath charged the GOP had delayed passage of the $5,580,000,000 European Security Bill by a "slowdown" in the Senate.

Says Public Demands It

"This strategy will not fool the American voter," McGrath said, "but it will cause him to scan closely the Republican record on ratification of the North Atlantic treaty to determine whether the Republicans will continue to use the peace program as a legislative roadblock."

Taft, who heads the Senate GOP Policy committee, replied tartly that the administration had better get ready for plenty of discussion of the security treaty. He denied the "slowdown" charge on foreign aid, and added:

"I think there is public demand for full and comprehensive discussion of the pact and all of the problems which arise out of it, including the issue of furnishing arms to the signatory nations."

To Hear 100 Witnesses

"It seems to me that this treaty is far more important as far as the country is concerned than Mr. Truman's proposed economic control measures, which have no public support whatever."

Senator Watkins (R-Utah), who has demanded the right to question witnesses who appear before the Senate Foreign Relations committee on the treaty, called McGrath's "slowdown" charge "utter nonsense." The committee plans to hear about 100 witnesses on the pact, a staff member of the group said.

An Easter Egg roll was held which was won by Faye Daley and Frances Miller, who rolled their eggs the greatest distance. They were awarded small prizes. A peanut scramble was also held and light refreshments consisting of chocolate milk and cookies were served. A surprise Easter Egg hunt followed. Each girl received two eggs. Tuesday afternoon, there will be a joint business meeting of the combined troops in the fire hall.

Miss Marian Tupper, executive director for the Adams County Girl Scouts, invested the girls. The program was as follows: Scripture and prayer, Nancy Tate; flag ceremony followed by Pledge to the Flag, Girl Scout promise and singing "America the Beautiful"; presentation of 10 Girl Scout laws as acted out in the form of a play; introduction of Miss Tupper by Mrs. Raymond Hale; investiture ceremony; vocal duet, Sarah Rice and Louise Cline, accompanied on the piano by Ann Luckenbaugh; playlet, "An International Surprise," by the Intermediate troop; piano duet, Ann Luckenbaugh and Shirley Flickinger; songs by the "Brownies"; vocal solo, Ann Deardorff, accompanied at piano by Gwendolyn Burgoon; instrumental number, Ann Luckenbaugh (flute), Ann Frederick (clarinet), Joyce Heckenluber (saxophone) and Jane Longenecker (drum).

The program ended with the presentation of a gift to Miss Tupper and the entire group singing "Girl Scouts Together." Later refreshments were served by the troop committee. Mrs. David Houck, Mrs. Floyd Morrow and Mrs. Fred Baltzler, leaders, were in charge of the program. The following girls were invested: Brownies, Vivian Lynn Bays, Ann Lott, Patsy Morrow, Mary Romig, and Jane Trostle; Intermediates, Elaine Althoff, Catherine Davis, Ann Deardorff, Joan Tate, Lois Jane Smick and Connie Sionaker; Seniors, Ann Luckenbaugh, Louise Cline, Ann Frederick, Joyce Heckenluber, Jane Longenecker, Jean Dillon, Shirley Flickinger, Sarah Rice.

Chapter 27

"Honestly," Ellen entreated, "What can you make out of this stuff that Bray was sending you?"

"You mustn't forget that Bray wasn't sending this to me. Fenton came across the envelope and he put it in the mails. My hunch is that Bray was just going through Hubbard's things and put this stuff inside, either to talk to me about it, or else to dispose of it himself. He probably had the whole thing figured out. And of course that's why he was killed."

"So as far as we're concerned we've drawn a blank?" Ellen asked wearily.

"There's only one more hope."

"What's that?"

"We'll stop at the janitor's, Vall's, and see who's borrowed his key recently. Maybe we can make some sense out of this puzzle then. Let's leave this stuff here and pick it up in the morning if we need it."

Ellen locked the envelope in her desk. They turned off the lights in the room and made their way out of the darkened building. In a few minutes the car was traveling toward the outskirts of the city.

When Raff stopped the car they were in front of a small darkened farmhouse. Ellen, who had been dozing, awakened when Raff tucked a blanket around her.

"Wait here. I'll be out in a few minutes," he said.

About five minutes later Raff came back, his breath steaming in the cold air. He got in the car beside her.

"You're beginning to act as if you have this thing all sewed up. Just what did you learn from Vall?" she asked.

"Not a thing," he said in disgust. "The list of people who have borrowed his key reads like a list of staff members of the department."

Bray borrowed it about two weeks after he had resigned from the chairmanship, five years ago. Bill Griffith borrowed it about three years ago. Paul Russell borrowed it about two years ago the first time and then again about a month ago. The day after he returned it, Vereck borrowed it. Fenton borrowed it on Thursday and you borrowed it on Friday afternoon.

"Oh, golly, that's about everyone, isn't it?"

"That's just about everyone. And that about washes us up. Ellen, we've got to go to the police. Just figure it out for yourself. So far we know there were at least four people who could have had a motive for wishing Hubbard dead. There was Bray himself for one, but I don't think he did it because he didn't commit suicide. There's Fenton, who might have reached the end of his rope. Certainly Bill Griffith would have a plausible motive. From what you tell me about how Hubbard treated Dr. Vereck, he wouldn't be so unhappy about Hubbard's death. And you can't tell what goes on in the mind of Paul Russell. Certainly he wasn't shedding any tears over Hubbard, or Bray either for that matter. The same goes for Worden."

Troop No. 14, Intermediate, meeting was called to order by the president, Barbara Motter. A "thank you" letter was read from Mrs. Clyde Crouse for the baby gifts. The girls were divided into two teams and went over town to collect autographs. The troop is helping with the cancer drive today.

"It does look hopeless, doesn't it?" she said wearily. "And I just thought of another thing. A person didn't have to have a key to get into Dr. Hubbard's office while he was there, even when he was taking his nap. The door was kept unlocked during the day. It was locked only when he wasn't in there."

"There you are. It means that each of the people around the department will have to be questioned very carefully as to his whereabouts both on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday midnight. It means that the stories will have to be checked."

"You're right, Dennis. I know you're right. But it seems like such a terrible thing, to have the police all around the department—to have all these filthy stories publicized. A lot of innocent people are going to suffer, and that doesn't seem right."

"You know my chief, Dr. Norton, at the hospital, had the same idea when I told him what Bray had said about Hubbard being murdered. The way I figure it, it takes a pretty strong emotional upset for an otherwise law-abiding citizen to commit murder. When such a person gets to the state where he can commit two murders, then I'd say he's psychopathic—he's no longer a responsible person."

There's no telling how long he can continue eliminating people and justifying it to himself. There was the attempt on you, too. We've got to find out who he is. It isn't so much that he has to be brought to justice as that he probably needs hospitalization. There's some mental quirk that's warping his whole judgment. There's no telling what he'll do next. He's got to be found, and quickly, Ellen."

"Of course you're right. I should have realized that this morning. Are you going to call the police, or will you go down there yourself?"

"I think I'd better go down. There's too much to explain."

"Dennis, I'd like to go with you."

"Swell, I was going to suggest that. I have to make the rounds in the wards tomorrow, but I'll be through at ten o'clock. That will be too early for you?"

"Oh, no. I'll be up at the office at nine tomorrow morning. I've got to type up a list of books to be placed on the reserve shelf for the library, and then I'm through for the day."

MAKE PROGRESS WITH BULLETS TO KILL CANCER

BY ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Detroit, April 16 (AP)—New steps toward forging chemical bullets to kill cancer were reported today to the American association for cancer research.

The new things are half a dozen chemicals that destroy parts of tumors and slow down cancer growths in mice and other animals. But they are also poisonous and dangerous. It is not yet known whether they will be of value for human use.

The fact that they work a little bit against cancer is hopeful. Starting with them man-made bullets may be fashioned which can be injected to seek out and kill cancers without seriously harming the human host.

Test 1,000 Chemicals
The new chemicals were described in a series of reports by scientific hospital, parked his car and went directly upstairs to bed. He had little difficulty getting to sleep, although for a few minutes, he had a vague uncomfortable feeling that there was something important that he should be remembering. Once he woke with a start. He had dreamed that he had solved the whole thing. It was all very simple. But he had no idea what the solution was. He laughed to himself ruefully.

Wishful thinking," he said aloud, and promptly fell asleep again.

The chemicals were turned up in a search which so far has tested 1,000 different chemicals against cancer. These belonged to various families of chemicals. Out of each 100 tested, only four or five have shown any effect.

Three of the newer ones come from a plant, the May Apple or Mandrake root. A crude extract, podophyllin, from this plant has affected several kinds of cancer transplanted into mice. The new trio are purified chemicals isolated from this crude stuff.

They are at least as effective against the mouse cancers, but are less toxic.

Hooks 27-inch Trout; Lands Him; 5th Try

Titusville, Pa., April 16 (AP)—John Brozdo of Titusville ought to get some kind of medal for perseverance. After five years of try and try again he hooked a 27 1/4 inch, seven-pound trout.

Displaying his prize catch—seven inches longer than any reported catch in Pennsylvania's first day of trout fishing this season—Brozdo said:

"I caught him with a pickled minnow and it took me 15 minutes to land him. I've been after that baby five years; hooked him four times and lost him. I can tell you, catching him on a fly-rod is about the biggest thrill I ever had."

COMMUNITY-WIDE
BLUE CROSS
ENROLLMENT

—Conducted By The Gettysburg Woman's Club—

OPENS APRIL 18

Dear Neighbor:

The worry over payment of hospital bills retards recovery and usually places a heavy financial burden on the patient. Most of us would feel an uncomfortable, if not unbearable, drain on the family budget in paying for the expensive modern hospital care—especially since we can never be sure just how much the many services we may need will cost.

THE BLUE CROSS PLAN makes it possible for you to pay your hospital bills with pennies. In fact the cost of Blue Cross protection daily is less than the cost of your daily newspaper.

With so many residents of Gettysburg not eligible for membership through any group, the Woman's Club considers it a privilege to have this opportunity to conduct a GROUP ENROLLMENT FOR ALL GETTYSBURG RESIDENTS. Every man, woman, and child regardless of age and status of employment can gain this protection—without medical examination.

MEMBERS OF THE WOMAN'S CLUB WILL ENROLL MEMBERS. No door-to-door solicitors or persons from out of town will enroll members in Blue Cross. IF APPROACHED BY A SOLICITOR, check with the ANNIE M. WARNER HOSPITAL.

Very sincerely yours,
MRS. F. H. KRAMER, Chairman

EYES AND EARS
GIVE DIFFERENT
REPORT ON TALK

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, April 16 (AP)—This story has a moral: You have to keep your eyes and ears open or you'll miss something.
The House was debating—later approved—a defense program of about $16,000,000.
Up stood Rep. Clarence Cannon, Missouri Democrat, to tell the House he thought a big wad of the dough ought to be spent on long-range planes.
This is where ears and eyes became important. For the next day the New York Times reported Cannon as saying, among other things, that if war started—
"Won't Send 'Our Boys'"
"Moscow and every other center in Russia, we must hit within one week after the war starts, and it can be done only by land-based planes such as we now have."
"We will not necessarily have to send our land army over there. In the next war, as in the last war, let us equip soldiers from other nations and let them send their boys into the holocaust instead of sending our own boys. That is what long-range planes mean."
"We will absolutely demoralize the enemy. We will destroy all his lines of communications. We will blast at the centers of operation, and then let our allies send the army in, other boys, not our boys, to hold the ground we win."

Our future allies, reading that in the Times, might get the impression that we were thinking of doing the blasting while our allies did the dying on the battlefield.
Record's Version
But when the Congressional Record of Cannon's speech came out the next day, this particular part didn't read the same way. It sounded milder in the Record. It said:
"Of course, a war could not be won by air power alone. There must be troops for occupation and navy ships for transportation. But under the Marshall Plan and the Atlantic pact we will have allies with troops and ships should also be given an opportunity to discharge their obligations as contracting powers."
"Why not let them contribute some of the boys needed to occupy enemy territory after we have demoralized and annihilated the enemy territory from the air?"
Which Is Correct?
We followed that plan in the last war and American boys are living today whose bones would be mouldering in alien soil had we insisted on rushing them in when our allies had an obligation to participate and were willing to send in their boys as a fair share of their contribution to the war to the defense of their people and their civilization."
Which version is correct? The one in the New York Times, noted for its accuracy, which is the same version our own Associated Press reporters had? Or the version which appeared in the Congressional Record?
I called Cannon and asked him. He said he hadn't read the published account quoted above. But he also said he did not know whether that's what he said on the floor. Why?
Will Be Confusing
He said he was excited at the time. He said he had gone on the floor with a prepared text. And it's his prepared text which appears in the Congressional Record.
Then I asked him if he—as many congressmen do—altered what the stenographer had taken down on the floor of the House before it could be printed in the Congressional Record.
No, he hadn't touched the Congressional Record after he made his speech, he said.
If the historians of our times come rooting around to find out what was happening this week, they'll have to make up their minds between the published accounts of what Cannon said, and the Congressional Record, which is a hand source book of congressional doings.

Negro To Repudiate Murder Confession
Philadelphia, April 16 (AP)—Charles H. Norman, 23-year-old negro who admitted at a magistrate's hearing that he killed two state liquor store employees "has an alibi and will repudiate the confession," his attorney says. Norman is charged with homicide and robbery.
Attorney Eugene H. Clarke, Jr., said his client lied when he admitted responsibility for the March 12 holdup-slaying in a south Philadelphia liquor store.
Clarke said he talked with Norman in a city hall jail cell yesterday.
"He told me a different story," Clarke told newsmen. Clarke said he was hired to represent Norman by the accused man's parents.

STRIKE LOOMS
Scranton, Pa., April 16 (AP)—There may be a strike on the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad at 6 a.m. (EST) Monday. Union officials of four railroad brotherhoods said last night the walkout was scheduled and there appeared little hope of any last minute settlement to avert the tieup. The railroad operates between Scranton, Pa., and Maybrook Yards, N. Y.

MONEY WORRIES
ARE PILING UP
FOR GOV. DUFF

Harrisburg, April 16 (AP)—New money troubles are starting to pile up for Gov. James H. Duff and administration forces in the General Assembly.
Appropriation bills up for a final vote in the House or Senate next week along with measures already approved, amount to at least $4,000,000 more than the $695,218,980 recommended by Duff in his budget message.
And on top of this, there is still pending the proposed $15,000,000 subsidy for slum clearance and low rent housing urged by Duff.
The governor can cut but never increase appropriations enacted by the Legislature.
GOP Promised Teachers
Up for final action in the lower branch is the general appropriation bill totaling $459,789,750 with Republican leaders already pledged to increase the total by another $9,000,000 to pay increased costs of teachers' salaries and pensions.
Also awaiting a vote is a $150,000,000 appropriation for the state's public assistance program in the next two years.
The relief allocation was exactly the amount asked by Duff but the appropriation committee reduced some of the governor's departmental requests. It also found $1,800,000 in the manufacturing and banking funds that could be shifted to the general fund for use in the coming biennium.
Made Some Cuts
The biggest cut was $1,750,000 in refunds on license fees under the oleomargarine law found unconstitutional in 1947. The committee announced the rebate was unnecessary.
It also trimmed $1,600,000 off the appropriation for mental hospitals because of the switch of the Western State Psychiatric Institute from state to local control but immediately approved a separate appropriation of $2,700,000 for the same institution.
Other sizable reductions included a $500,000 slice from the appropriation for sealing abandoned coal mines, $1,000,000 from the Department of Military Affairs and $250,000 from the Health Department allocation for tuberculosis sanatoria.
Some Increases Voted
On the other hand, a Senate committee is considering a measure to give $2,500,000 to county-operated tuberculosis hospitals to help defray costs of operating local institutions.
The reductions totaled $5,563,000 but on the other side of the ledger there were increases of $22,045,349 in the general appropriation bill and companion measures.
These ranged from a $1,000,000 boost in the allocation to the new general state building authority for administration costs to a $12,000 increase in the allocation to Valley Forge Park Commission.

$100,000 awaiting a vote is a $100,000 appropriation for the state's public assistance program in the next two years.

The relief allocation was exactly the amount asked by Duff but the appropriation committee reduced some of the governor's departmental requests. It also found $1,800,000 in new manufacturing and banking funds that could be shifted to the general fund for use in the coming biennium.
